25 RESERVOIRS AND 7,566 MILES OF CANALS HAVE BEEN BUILT

Roosevelt dam, Arizona; an irrigated orange grove; Director Frederick H. Newell.

According to a recent statement of Director F. H. Newell of the government reclamation service, Uncle Sam has already spent more than $80,000,000 in building large reservoirs in the mountains of the west to hold the flood waters and in constructing canals to distribute this water to the dry lands. Twenty-five great reservoirs have been built, and the canals already dug total 7,566 miles in length.

JUDGES OF SUPREME COURT ACT AS ESCORT

The funeral of the late Judge Jacob Boreman was held Friday at 11 o'clock from the First Presbyterian church. The services were brief, Mrs. C. H. Stevens rendering two familiar hymns and Rev. J. E. Carver conducting a brief scripture service.

The members of the Ogden Bar association and the G. A. R. attended in a body. The pall bearers were A. R. Heywood, J. S. Gordon, H. H. Henderson, Judge J. A. Howell, Thomas Lundy and Valentine Gideon. The body was taken to Salt Lake City, where it was met by the Salt Lake Bar association. About forty members of the Salt Lake Bar, including the judges of the supreme court of Utah, escorted the remains to Mt. Olivet cemetery, where interment was made.

Besides the judges of the supreme court, Judges Powers, Varian, W. H. King, E. B. Critchlow, W. S. Lee and H. R. MacMillan acted as special escort.

Respect Shown by Court.

Sitting en banc this morning Judge James A. Howell and Nathan J. Harris received resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Judge Jacob S. Boreman, which were passed by the Ogden Bar association yesterday, and ordered their spread upon the minutes of the court. It was also ordered that speeches made by Attorneys J. N. Kimball and H. H. Henderson be spread upon the minutes and that a copy of the record be forwarded to the bereaved family.

In ordering the resolutions, made a matter of court record, Judge Howell stated that it would furnish an opportunity for younger members of the bar to know something of a man who had much to do with the framing of court decisions in Utah's turbulent times and also show respect and recognition of Judge Boreman as an able jurist and an honest man. The judge said that in reading the decisions of Judge Boreman in the early court reports the character of the man was easily read between the lines to be one of honesty and justice, dealing more with the broader rules of law than with technical questions. Some of Judge Boreman's models of precision and enunciation of correct principles. He had known the judge in his old age as one as gentle and kind as a child, bearing no malice toward any one and filled with an optimism that bespoke his excellent character.

Attorney Kimball and Henderson had known Judge Boreman in the earlier period of Utah and said that he had rendered legal service to the territory that would remain a matter of record for all time. M. Kimball said that Judge Boreman came to the bench in the year 1874 and aided the other judges in establishing rules of practice in the courts. Prior to his time, district courts exercised but little jurisdiction in legal matters, the probate courts of that time having jurisdiction in all civil matters and most of the business going to those tribunals, but Judge Boreman was one of the jurists to bring the district courts more into use. Code proceedings were passed by the territorial legislature in 1872, but the code was really not put into practice until Judge Boreman's time, when it was enforced.

Judge Henderson stated that he had known Judge Boreman for 27 years and remembered well when he first came to Ogden to hold court, 25 years ago. The court was held in a building now occupied by the Elks' home and there were about 500 civil cases on the calendar and from 300 to 400 motions to be heard. He said that Judge Boreman remained in the city until he had handled all the cases and got the calendars in shape for further work. Mr. Henderson stated that Judge Boreman was eminent in the consideration of constitutional law and that he was the peer of any man as a judge, a lawyer and a citizen.

GLOBE THEATER

SUNDAY NIGHT

One day earlier than previously advertised, Mrs. Fiske as "Tess" in "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" will appear at the Globe theatre Sunday night and continue for four days. This magnificent production consists of five full reels. The interest in this picture will, of course, center about Mrs. Fiske. Her admirers will not be disappointed. True it is that the appealing voice will not be heard, but there will remain the art of revealing through expression the tumult that surges in the bosom. The face of "Tess" may be as a piece of stone, but the eyes tell the whole story. You see, you feel the tears; there are a multiplicity of strong situations. Don't miss this beautiful production. Prices the same—adults 10 cents, children 5 cents.—(Advertisement.)

OPERATION OF BRITISH INSURANCE ACT

The act gave the most generous terms to persons not coming under the compulsory clauses to insure themselves voluntarily. If under 45 they could come in up to Jan. 14 last at the flat rate of 7d for men and 6d for women. If over 45, or if they came in after that date, they paid the rate appropriate to their age. These terms were so generous that it was expected that there would be $20,000 voluntary contributors. The actual number for Great Britain is only 16,703. That is to say, there are tens of thousands of men of 15 to 45 years of age and should have got for 10 per week an insurance policy worth 9d at 16 and 1s 0 1-2d at 45 who have been frightened out of this boon by the shriekings of the anti-insurance act press.

With this one exception the success of the act has been complete. Figures can cover only the dimmest idea of its triumph, especially to those of us who have only what Shakespeare's Cressida calls "a tapestry's arithmetic." Readers who are happily able to think England alone, up to March 21st last, 342,848,351 health insurance stamps had been sold; but even those hardened calculators will note with a gasp the fanatical accuracy of the odd one. By May 31st—the first report of the administration of the insurance act, one of the most important blue books ever issued, is my authority—the payments into the national health insurance fund for England aggregated 15,771 lbs 3s. which, I should suspect, from the absence of pence, to a mere estimate if I had not added the figures up for myself. The number of insured persons in England is not yet known, but—and here at the last among these stupendous accuracies we get a confusion of weakness—it is estimated that they were 10,459,500 members of 2069 approved societies on January 21st last.

Another anticipation of fifteen months ago has been falsified by results, but this time most happily. The expected number of deposit contributors was $22,000; the actual number is only 468,000. It is clearly impossible to avoid the depositor class except by excluding them together, for they are the inevitable result of allowing self-government to the approved societies, they receive a very substantial return for their weekly payments the average amount paid in sickness claims being 7s 8d and in maternity claims 11s 1d, while they, of course, get medical and sanatorium benefits in full.
